Copyright Fee Paid (CFP) articles

What are they?

Articles for which a copyright fee has been paid to the publisher. Once obtained, they may be treated as if owned by the NHS, and shared and stored under the terms of the CLA Licence .

They typically cost £30-£40 each. However, an annual allocation is included in the cost of the CLA Licence for the NHS in England – so we can make them available free to NHS library services.

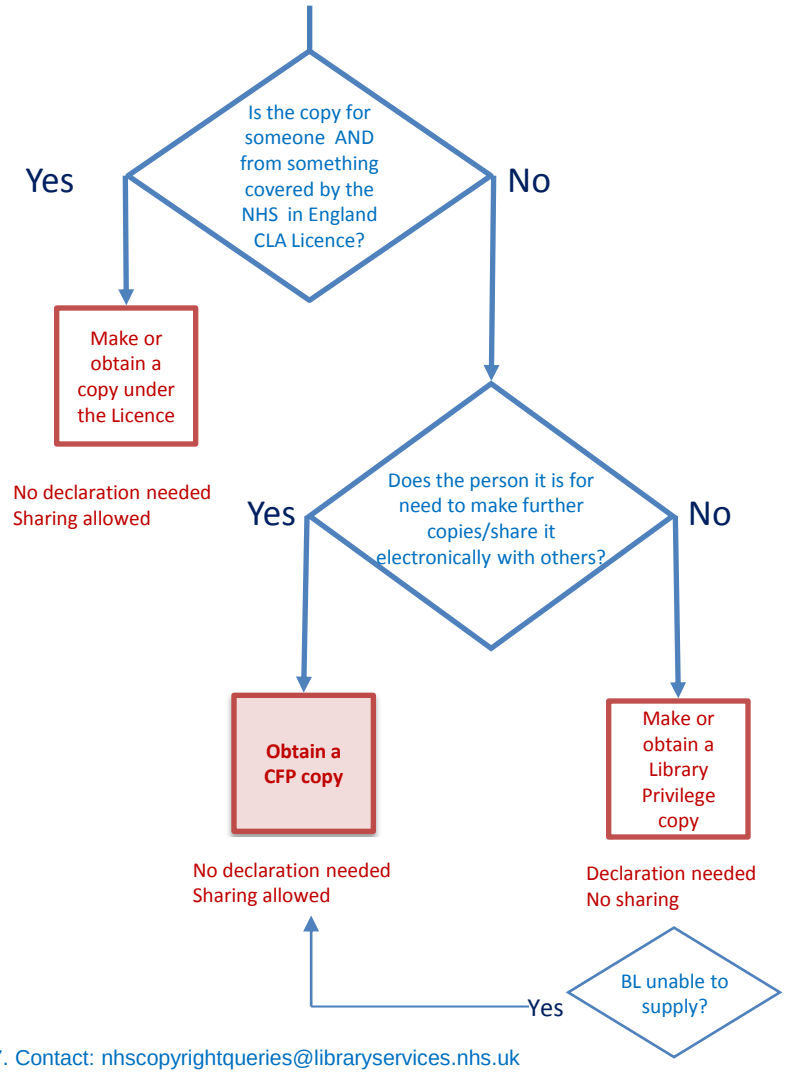
Where and how do we get them?

CFP articles may be obtained from the British Library (BL) and the Royal Society of Medicine (RSM) Library.

To request free CFP articles from BL, you need a second BL account: contact ania.nogal@hee.nhs.uk

Be sure to request CFP articles in unencrypted format.

When and why do we use them?



Helen Bingham, HEE, on behalf of NHS Copyright First Responders, May 2017. Contact: nhscopyrightqueries@libraryservices.nhs.uk